REVIVES SCHOOL WORK IN RALEIGH

Professor J. W. Holmes Knows How to Get Results.

TEACHES MANY INDUSTRIES.

How St. Augustine is Keeping Pace With Other Educational Institutions in North Carolina—Makes Extensive By GEORGE F. KING.

Raleigh, N. C.—St. Augustine's school, this city, is keeping in the progressive procession of the educational institutions that are meeting the peculiar exigencies of the Afro-American young men and women. Professor J. W. Holmes, a graduate of the North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College for Afro-Americans, located at Greensboro, is a conservative and very competent young man.

He has elicited comment from the white people as well as the Afro-Americans of this section. He is a factor in this very creditable work of racial ascendancy as is being enhanced by St. Augustine's school. The thorough training that he received at his alma mater, which characterizes all of its graduates, has made him a success at everything that he has attempted to do. This is a fitting recognition of his ability to work to the extent of his natural limitation. After his graduation he became a contractor and builder in the city of Greensboro and at High Point, and in those cities there are many fine buildings as an attestation of his mechanical knowledge.

When St. Augustine's school wanted a man of his caliber to make its industrial department meet the needs which were much evidenced daily by a large number of young people, he accepted the position of teacher in carpentry in the year of 1904. This position he creditably filled until September, 1908, at which time he was elected superintendent of industries.

Professor Holmes succeeded the Rev. H. H. Dancy, in the position of superintendent of industries.

PROFESSOR J. W. HOLMES.

Americans in the diocese of North Carolina. The progress that this department has made under the skillful direction of Professor Holmes is eliciting praise in all sections of the country, for there are a host of young people that have been trained in this department, and they are meeting the strenuous competition in their respective trades and reflecting credit upon those that have so efficiently molded them for a life of service.

Professor Holmes supervised the construction of the stately structure, St. Agnes' hospital, which cost approximately $40,000, and is superintending the construction of the Thomas Memorial building, which will cost about $30,000 when completed.

These buildings, with other smaller buildings and extensive improvements made on the grounds and buildings of this beautiful school plant, is a "native ideal" for thousands of young Afro-Americans. The following industries are under his supervision: Carpentry, masonry, printing, farming, laundering, etc.

This young man is brim full of optimism when it comes to making the Negro a tangible force in material activities. His keen business perception and character of sterling worth have made him an indispensable factor in many movements among our people in North Carolina. He is vice president of the Capital Building Loan association, which is assisting hundreds of thrifty wage earners in the race to procure comfortable homes.

He is also a director and one of the principal stockholders of the Capital Development and Trust company. Both corporations are a fine success and a pride among the race in Raleigh and vicinity. In Masonic circles he holds two important positions. Such ambitious young men are a credit to their race and their alma mater and are solving the race problem in a very comprehensive and favorable manner.

REUNION OF PHILATELICS.

Cyrus Field Adams Guest at Society Function in Washington.

Among the guests at the reunion dinner of the Washington Philatelic society in the red room of the Ebbitt House recently was Mr. Cyrus Field Adams, formerly assistant register of the treasury and one of the best known philatelists in the country. Mr. Adams is still making his home in Washington and will go into business when his plans are fully matured.

It will be remembered that Mr. Adams was once south town clerk of Chicago, elected by the people, and it is said that he sets greater store by his victory in this connection than in any other achievement in his long and useful public life. Mr. Adams is quite a linguist, speaking fluently German, French, Spanish and Italian, besides his mother tongue. He is still editor of the Appeal, published at Chicago and St. Paul, and ranks among the veterans of the journalistic craft of the race.

SECRET SOCIETY AFFAIRS.

Grand United Order of True Reformers Adds to Membership.

Evidence of the complete rehabilitation and growth of the Grand United Order of True Reformers is apparent from all sources. Old members are returning, new ones are being added, and confidence is being restored. Through the strenuous efforts of the president, Mr. Floyd Ross, much has been accomplished to the great delight of the race.

At the semiannual meeting of the board of directors recently held President Ross, the secretary and the treasurer made a report exceeding any made to the board for the past six years. Since August $25,000 has been received, 36,000 policies issued and eighty-three Pountains and Rosebud nurseries organized. The headquarters of the organization are in Richmond, Va. It has branches throughout the country.

EDITORS MEET EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE FOR BUSINESS

Midwinter Session in Philadelphia Was Largely Attended and Beneficial.

Philadelphia.—The midwinter meeting of the executive committee of the National Negro Press association was held in this city at the headquarters of the emancipation proclamation commission on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 1. President R. W. Thompson called the meeting to order and presided during the preliminary speech-making, in which words of welcome were extended to the committee by Philadelphia editors, ministers, doctors and lawyers.

N. Barnett Dodson, chairman of the executive committee, presided over the business session, which lasted nearly five hours, during which time the more important phases of newspaper work were discussed. Corresponding Secretary Henry Allen Boyd made an exhaustive report of the work done since the Chicago meeting. The report showed that through Mr. Boyd's efforts scores of editors had joined the association and with few exceptions all the members of the executive committee had complied with the bylaws by paying their annual dues.

The matter of a reciprocal news service was presented by Mr. Daniel H. Murphy of the Afro-American Ledger, Baltimore, and the question of how to get news into plate from all the different sections of the country was brought up by Mr. James H. Anderson, managing editor of the Amsterdam News, New York. These two leading features and the matter of standardization of advertising, program and other arrangements for the annual meeting after being briefly discussed were on motion referred to a subcommittee of five members of the executive committee headed by Mr. T. Thomas Fortune.

Among the editors who took an active part in the proceedings were Dr. R. R. Wright of the Christian Recorder; D. H. Murphy and Franklin F. Johnson, Baltimore; A. P. Caldwell, Philadelphia; Fred R. Moore, New York; James H. Anderson, New York; James A. Lightfoot, Atlantic City, N. J.; W. H. Craighead, Harrisburg, Pa.; James W. Poe, Richmond, Va.; W. L. Porter, Knoxville, Tenn.; John Clinton, Jr., Philadelphia; Mr. Jones of the Northern Planet, Philadelphia, and G. Grant Williams of the Philadelphia Tribune. Resolutions endorsing Mr. Fred R. Moore's appointment by President Taft as United States minister to Liberia were passed by a unanimous vote.

Full details of the plans of the association will be published later. Work on the newspaper and publishers' directory under Secretary Boyd is meeting with a goodly measure of success. Editors and publishers who have not sent in their matter for the directory as requested by the secretary should do so at once. The committee accepted the invitation of the proprietor of the Hotel Dale, Cape May, N. J., through Editor James H. Anderson, to hold one session of the annual meeting in August at the Hotel Dale.

RESULTS OF CO-OPERATION.

Trend Toward Unity Strongly Felt. Dr. J. B. Singleton as Financier.

Nashville, Tenn.—Business concerns, educational institutions, secret and mutual benefit societies managed by Afro-Americans are bound to succeed if properly conducted and supported by those for whom such concerns are organized. The trend of leaders of the race in almost every walk of life now seems to be toward co-operation, concentration and unity. This is an encouraging sign of real progress.

The success of the race in conducting business and financial institutions on a large scale shows that our people are learning the lesson that in union there is strength, and that if we are to be a strong, industrious people there must be a union of forces working along all lines of industry, education and religion. The strong should help the weak, the more fortunate the less fortunate and the educated should strive to uplift those who still remain in ignorance.

In the matter of finance the People's Savings Bank and Trust company in this city is a striking example of the possibilities of the race to succeed in matters of business requiring more than ordinary knowledge, executive ability, self reliance and skill.

Dr. J. B. Singleton, who succeeded the late Dr. R. F. Boyd as president of the People's Savings Bank and Trust company, was again selected unanimously to head this institution at the annual stockholders' meeting of the bank held recently. Under his administration the success of the institution has been all that was desired by those connected with the concern, the last year, 1912, being the most prosperous in the history of the institution.

The bank has a remarkable record for gains, and the total resources for 1912 were over $50,000, and this when it only three and one-half years old. During the past year the gain in resources shows the amount to have been $21,000 and the capital stock increased $6,000, a condition largely attributed to the business acumen of President Singleton, who has about him a most worthy corps of local business men, who are his staunch supporters and advisers.

EMANCIPATION MEETING.

Advancement Association Holds Overflow—Celebration in Cooper Union.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People held a largely attended emancipation meeting in Cooper Union, New York, on Monday evening, Feb. 10, at 8 o'clock. Mr. John E. Milholland presided. The principal speakers were Dr. M. C. B. Mason, the new national organizer of the association; Mrs. Fanny Garrison Villard and John Jay Chapman.

There were brief remarks on resolutions presented to the meeting by Dr. Du Bois, Mr. Villard and Mr. Spingarn. There were plantation melodies sung by some of the members of Dr. G. H. Sim's church. The members of the flying squadron acted as ushers.

It was fitting that such a meeting of the association be held in the hall where the great emancipator made his most memorable speech against slavery. The meeting was a great success. There was no charge for admission. Representative people of many races occupied seats on the platform as guests of honor.

Suited Him.

A man of penurious habits decided to have his portrait painted, but was determined to pay only a certain sum of money. He interviewed the artist, who accepted the paltry amount, payment in advance.

The artist set to work at once, but when the portrait was finished nothing was visible but the back of the sitter's head.

"What does this mean?" cried the artist indignantly.

"Well," replied the artist, "I thought a man who paid so little as you paid wouldn't care to show his face."—Biff.

NATIONAL LEAGUE SEEKS TO UPLIFT THE PEOPLE.

Opens Housing Bureau in Heart of Thickly Settled District.

The National League on Urban Conditions Among Colored People has recently established at 11 West One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, New York, a housing bureau, which is destined to perform a much needed mission in this district. The main purpose of this bureau is to furnish to the public a list of respectable apartment houses in which tenants may be assured of dignified and refined associations.

This movement is a result of the clamoring of the better classes of colored people for a clearer line of demarcation between the respectable and the disreputable, for so uncertain are the tenants of the houses in which the latter class moves that it has been stated over and over again by responsible residents of this district that such provision as the league is now making is absolutely necessary.

The plan of the housing bureau is simple. Lists of houses which real estate agents desire to have approved are furnished by these agents to the bureau, which after inspection and interviews with responsible individuals residing in these houses are formally certified to. Complaints are received from persons who are annoyed, and when only one or two families in a house are known to be responsible for such undue annoyance, with the co-operation of the agent and owner, these individuals are summarily disposed of.

It is apparent that only through the creation of clear moral consciousness and an advanced community spirit can such an effort prove efficacious. Public opinion, coupled with the support of real estate agents and owners, will easily bring about the desired change. One agent has testified to the fact that in the past it was lack of moral courage which made it impossible for him to get rid of objectionable families.

An owner of a large amount of property in this district has said that the cause of higher rents and indiscriminate mixing lies at the door of the tenants themselves.

Lectures on Medical Jurisprudence. Register J. C. Napier of the United States treasury has gone to Nashville, Tenn., to deliver a series of lectures on "Medical Jurisprudence" before the classes of the Meharry Medical college, as has been his wont for a number of years. These lectures have to do with the legal side of the practice of medicine and are regarded as one of the most important features of the course at Meharry. Of this far-reaching subject Mr. Napier is an acknowledged authority. The lectures are for February.

Miss Davis to Make Tour of the South. Friends of Miss Henrietta Vinton Davis are much gratified at the success which she is having on her tour of the principal cities of Virginia. As a gifted elocutionist Miss Davis has long held the front rank in her profession. Her tour of Bermuda in 1912 was a brilliant triumph. Miss Davis will attend the inauguration festivities in Washington March 4, after which she will leave for an extended tour of the far south.

Baltimore Times Changes Hands. Melvin J. Chisum has leased the Baltimore Times from Harry T. Pratt, owner of the paper. It will be Republican in politics. Mr. Chisum has been publishing the Tri-State News at Salisbury, Md., for some time. He has already assumed charge of the Times.

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

Young men, you are the architects of your own fortunes. Rely upon your own strength of body and soul. Take for your star self reliance, faith, honesty and industry. Inscribe on your banner, "Luck is a fool; pluck is a hero." Don't take too much advice. Keep at your helm and steer your own ship and remember that the great art of commanding is to take a fair share of the work. Don't practice too much humanity. Think well of yourself. Strike out. Put potatoes in your cart over a rough road and small ones go to the bottom. Rise above the envious and jealous. Fire above the mark you intend to hit. Energy, invincible determination, with a right motive, are the levers that move the world. Don't drink. Don't chew. Don't smoke. Don't swear. Don't deceive. Don't marry until you can support a wife. Be in earnest. Be self reliant. Be generous. Be civil. Read the papers. Advertise your business. Make money and do good with it. Love your God and fellow men. Love truth and virtue. Love your country and obey its laws. If this advice be implicitly followed by the young men of the country the millennium is at hand.—Noah Porter.

NEW MOVEMENT IN RICHMOND

Ministers' Union Forms Big Social Service Organization.

PLAN COVERS WIDE FIELD.

Necessity For United Effort on the Part of the Various Agencies For Uplift Among the Masses in the Community Awakens Great Anxiety Among Leaders.

Richmond, Va.—The missionary and social service movement was launched by the Interdenominational Ministers' union of this city recently at the city auditorium.

The articles of the union, as read, were approved by Governor William Hodges Mann, Right Rev. Robert A. Gibson, D. D., bishop of Virginia; Editor John Mitchell, Jr., M. R. S. A., and many other prominent citizens.

The Interdenominational Ministers' union plans to launch a missionary and social service movement in which it hopes to co-operate and affiliate more effectively with other agencies engaged in the work of moral, social and religious uplift and in the amelioration of many unfortunate conditions of our people in this great city. While it is evident that much good is being accomplished through various movements operating for the betterment of our city, it is also apparent that unification of work and aim is lacking.

The missionary and social service movement plans to create a desire for united effort in the struggle against evils so rife in our midst; to awaken a deeper love for Christian knowledge and practice; to encourage industrial and intellectual training; to develop the spirit of business and domestic efficiency; to collect accurate data and issue publications pertaining to moral and health conditions.

The promoters of the movement have issued the following statement: "We observe with regret the rapidity with which our people are losing their places in domestic service and recommending hasty advice and instruction to them in the dignity of labor, both skilled and unskilled.

We advocate the establishment and maintenance of a labor bureau to co-operate with employment agencies in placing suitable help and furnishing temporary shelter to worthy persons seeking employment. Our hospitals, orphan asylums and homes for the aged and decrepit are meeting a great and laudable demand, but there is still a great need for day nurseries, kindergartens and playgrounds, where the children may be cared for and helped in an atmosphere which is purer and more healthy than that which the street affords.

We believe in the public library and reading room as means to lessen vagrancy, to attract the young from harmful amusements and to stimulate an aspiration for the higher things of life. We deplore the insanitary and congested conditions of our tenement districts where immorality of all kinds runs rampant, and we advise the formation of neighborhood unions in various colored districts, the purpose of which would be to create sentiment against insanitary conditions.

As ministers of the gospel engaged in the practical missionary and social work of the city we hear the first cry of the distressed. Calls for material and spiritual help are continually coming. Shall we close our ears to the call and our hearts to the need? We appeal to the rich to help the poor; we appeal to the fortunate to help the unfortunate; we appeal to the strong to help the weak.

And with consolidation of all forces committed to constructive missionary and social work we believe a new epoch will begin in the effective consideration and solution of our city problems. As soon as a permanent organization shall have been perfected direct appeals will be made to philanthropic citizens to aid in fostering this worthy cause.

J. W. Eaters, pastor of Leigh Street M. E. church; W. T. Johnson, pastor of First Baptist church; Moses Lake, pastor of Asbury M. E. church; J. E. Harper, pastor of First Presbyterian church; O. G. Jenkins, pastor of A. M. E. Zion church; C. L. Somers, president, rector of St. Philip's P. E. church, and S. S. Morris, secretary, pastor of Third Street A. M. E. church, are the leaders of this new movement for the uplift of the race in Richmond.

The Neighborhood club co-operates with the associated charities and the health department of the city. It has branches in each church. It meets a long standing need in relief work among the poor and destitute and is giving accurate study to the care of health and sanitary conditions. Mrs. Ora Stokes is president of the organization.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK SOUTH.

Plenty of Room For Thrifty Workers. Rev. J. W. Hair's Success.

Jackson, Miss.—Mississippi is full of opportunities for the young colored American despite the much talked of race prejudice. Many of them are taking advantage of the opportunities and pushing to the front and are being heard from in various walks of life.

Perhaps it would be a source of inspiration to the public and especially the young people from time to time to hear something about those who are forging to the front. In the pulpit many strong men are taking the places of the men who are growing less active. Then the medical, law, dental and other professions are claiming the attention of both men and women.

In the pulpit one of the strongest men is the Rev. J. W. Hair, D. D., pastor of the Pearl Street A. M. E. church in this city. As this he is serving his fifth year and is one of the leaders in the educational work. He was born in Sumner county, Ala., about thirty-nine years ago of slave parents. His father, Ned Hair, was a politician of wide influence during the reconstruction period.

The Rev. Mr. Hair became active as a Christian worker at the age of fifteen, superintendent of the Sunday school at the age of sixteen and was licensed to exhort in 1895; district superintendent of Sunday schools, Vicksburg district, A. M. E. church, 1897-8; local preacher in 1898, admitted to the annual conference on trial at Vicksburg in 1899 by Bishop W. B. Derrick, entered the itinerant ministry at Yazoo City in 1901 and was assigned to the Indiana mission with five members and no church.

Here he demonstrated the force of his ability as a leader and an organizer of men. Within nine months time he had increased the membership from five to twelve and built a church worth $2,500. At this place the conference allowed him to remain for five years, in which time he raised the charge from a mission to a full fledged church, leaving it clear of debt and with one of the most refined and cultured congregations in the state.

He was ordained deacon by Bishop K. Tyree in 1902 and elder in 1903. His second charge was in Yazoo City. He served this charge one year and broke all previous records. At this place he again showed wise and sure leadership. Amidst confusion and discord he conducted a successful revival and added eighty-four members to the church and paid a $600 debt and reported $120 of what is known as dollar money. Rev. Mr. Hair was appointed to his present charge by the late Bishop E. W. Lampton three years ago. He has reduced the church debt from $47,000 to less than $1,700. He is much interested in all that makes for race advancement.

He is one of the pioneer members of the Woodmen of Union and is now the supreme secretary of that fraternity. He is the supreme governor of the Fishermen of the Red Cross Relief society, which is having a wonderful growth under him as its supreme head. He is broad, generous and just. He has a devoted and loving wife and four children. He also possesses a little of the world's goods. He is destined to be a great leader in the councils of his church and race.

TASK FOR SUPREME COURT.

Mississippi Jimcrow Car Muddle Up For Final Settlement.

Whether the "jimcrow" car laws of a state apply to interstate passengers as well as to interstate travel is being tried out in the supreme court of the United States on an appeal brought up from the supreme court of the state of Mississippi by Miss Pearl Morris, a white woman, who has been awarded $2,000 damages by the supreme court of Mississippi for being compelled by a railroad company to occupy a Pullman coach in which three Negroes were traveling.

The case is being watched with deep interest. A decision for Miss Morris may mean that the Pullman company must provide special sleepers for the colored people. If the plaintiff is not sustained colored Pullman passengers will ride through Mississippi without let or hindrance and an antiquated issue will have reached a happy settlement.

Stanfield Prepared For Business.

Howard university is proud of the splendid record which scores of its graduates are making as teachers, professional and business men and women scattered as they are throughout the United States. In the New Jersey state medical examination, where forty-five persons were examined for license to practice medicine, Augustus Stanfield, a Howard graduate, received the highest mark. He is well prepared to enter upon the exacting duties of his profession.

Demonstration Agents Aid Farmers.

The influence of the demonstration agents of the department of agriculture upon rural life in the south is having a good effect. Thousands of farmers are taking instruction from these agents and putting it into practical use on their farms. They are finding out the real value of knowing how to select seed and soil and the best time to plant.

THE TRUE STORY OF K. P. AFFAIRS

In the face of overwhelming 'cast the supporters of the present administration in the K. P. Grand Lodge are making a desperate effort to stem the rising tide of popular disfavor of the mismanagement of the Order's affairs by dragging in petty personalities in a vain hope of drawing the attention of the Pythians away from the real questions at issue. That this trick will not work is evidenced by the firm position taken by the members who say that they are not interested in the personal quarrels of the Grand Chancellor or any other member—that they are concerned in the welfare and the proper administration of the Pythian affairs, and must know the truth who ever it effects.

Close observers of conditions say for some time it has been apparent that affairs of the Grand Lodge were not conducted openly and above board. Immediately after the last meeting of the Grand Lodge, a number of members started an investigation with the view of finding out the true condition of affairs. After about two months work the committee at a meeting in the Pythian Building and attended by members from 8 lodges reported that the business of the Grand Lodge was being mismanaged.

The reports of the Grand Lodge officers were misleading and contained misrepresentation of facts and figures. Misappropriation of certain funds in the hands of Grand Lodge officers.

The semi-annual pass word was being withheld because the Supreme Lodge taxes had not been paid.

The making of these charges and the divulging of compromising evidence was the reason for the attempted suspension of the men engaged in the investigation. The charges were made in September, 1912, and still stand until they are proved untrue.

For the benefit of those members in whose minds there is any doubt as to who is right and who is wrong, we are printing in full the following letter from the Supreme Charleston telling why Indiana's pass word was held up from June until October. This reargue totals over $1,000. Did the members pay this tax into their lodges? Did the lodges pay it into the Grand Lodge? Then—but read this:

New Orleans, La., July 17, 1912
SIR E. G. TIDWORTH, G. C.,
"O. N. Senate Ave.
Indianapolis, Ind.

Dear Sir & Brother:— I am in receipt of yours of 'he 8th inst. relative to your failure to receive the S. A. P. W. for your Grand Jurisdiction. I wish to advise that Indiana is being treated the same as other Grand Jurisdictions that have not paid their taxes, and I desire to assure you that Indiana will not be treated any worse than any other Grand Jurisdiction. On the other hand, Indiana has been given favors because of your personal assurance that all taxes would be paid. I am prepared again to accept your personal assurance that all taxes will be paid for Indiana by August 1, 1912, and the S. A. P. W. will be transmitted to you upon receipt of that assurance.

I have before me, a letter from the Secretary of the P. T. S. Commission under date of June 11, 1912 in which he states that "The Grand Lodge of Indiana is in arrears with this department, Temple Tax for 1909 in full; Emergency Tax for 1910 in full; Emergency Tax for 1909. I received the sum of $325.00 in payments to wit: June 17, 1910, $120.00; January 25, 1911 $150.00; August 22, 1911, $55.00. Total $325.00" As your report for the year 1909 showed 3,000 members in good standing, the payment of taxes for that year was about correct. The above statement leaves your Grand Jurisdiction in arrears for Pythian Temple Tax 1909 in full, Emergency Tax 1910 in full and Defense Tax 1911 in full.

Up to this writing, Indiana has been furnished with the password from time to time upon your assurance that the taxes would be paid. You may judge from the above statement as to whether Indiana has been properly or improperly treated by this office with respect to furnishing your Grand Jurisdiction with the S. A. P. W. Your letter stating that your membership was 2,100 is not satisfactory, for the reason that you should furnish the date on which the membership was taken, and the statement should come from your records and should be attested by the Grand Keeper of Records and Seal, who should have a record of the membership of your Grand Jurisdiction in his office. The statement of the membership is required at the date when the taxes became due, as for tax for 1910, the membership should be shown for November 1st of that year. Defense Tax of 1911, the membership should be shown from your records November 1st of that year.

There are Grand Lodges from which the S. A. P. W. is never withheld because they pay their taxes promptly and without having to be called upon to pay same.

Awaiting your reply to the above, in order that the S. A. P. W. may be mailed to your address, I am,

Yours fraternally,
S. W. GREEN, S. C.

Women can not vote, but when voting time comes, we are coming after the voters to elect men who are willing to give us a square deal. We mean to fight Collins and Tutewiler and their class to a finish.

Again we hear of Judge Collins in the Benson case. A white man, a moulder by trade making $25 00 per week had a squabble with his Negro wife. He pushed her and she threw something at him and then had him arrested. The Judge lectured him not for abusing his wife but for marrying her. The man stated that he cared for and wanted the woman and that he was sorry about the trouble. Such a case is usually settled with a small fine, but our wise and upright Judge "our Negro hater" gave them each $25 00 fine. Why shouldn't any two people in the world marry if they want each other. Why not?

A PROSPEROUS CITY ATTORNEY

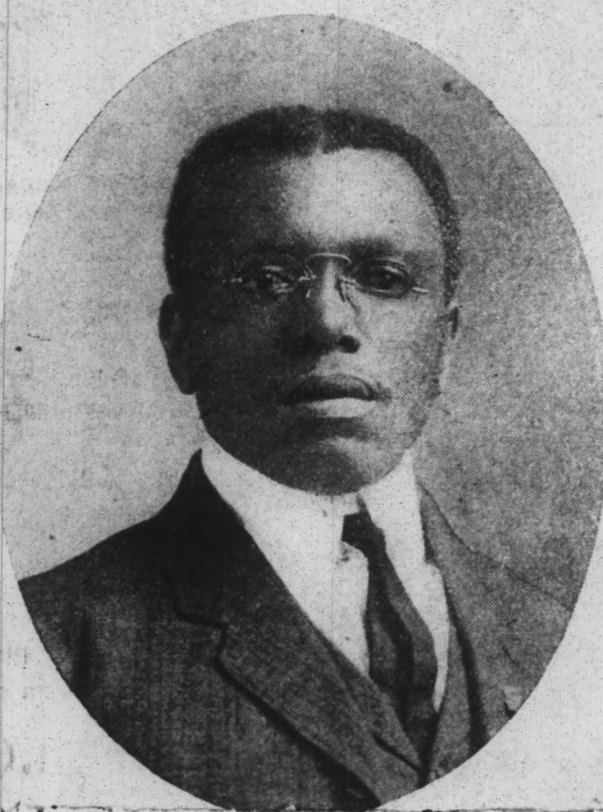

One of the Most Able Members of the Bar and Held in High Esteem by Clients

Among the young men of Indianapolis who are doing things in the way of bringing to pass what seemed a dream to our fathers, is W. S. Henry, a young and prosperous attorney with offices at 147 East Washington street. Mr. Henry enjoys the distinction of being classed among the most able members of the bar in the presentation of his cases to the court and jury. He is a forceful and eloquent speaker, combined with that fearless and bull dog tenacity that gives peculiar cast to his profession.

Mr. Henry came to this city nine years ago in the interest of the True Reformers and during the four years here he studied law by correspondence, graduated in July 1908, and was admitted to the bar the following January. Prior to his coming to this city he had been a teacher in the public schools of Virginia, his home state, having graduated with the class of 1899 of the Virginia Normal and Collegiate Institute at Petersburg. He has a large and lucrative practice, having handled successfully during his four years at the bar a large number of exceedingly difficult and important cases. He attributes much of his success in the fact that he has never abused the confidence of a single client, never look a fee from a client without rendering a service commensurate with the same, and that he never turned an honest man away if his legal or political rights had been infringed upon, whether he had the price to pay or whether he was a pauper possessed only with an honest heart.

He believes implicitly in the possibilities of his race, and that whenever a question as to the rights, civil political or otherwise of the Negro is to be settled through the courts, the man who sees, feels and sympathizes with the aggrieved is the better fitted to fight his battles than the man who has nothing in common with him and fights for the fee he receives a battle against his will. Mr. Henry has now a case pending in the Appellate Court of the State, and was retained this week as chief counsel in a cause whose interest will extend before completed to every Negro's hearthstone in the State. He has arose from the ranks to the exalted position of esteem accorded him by his peers, vying with the material world for his part of its wealth and prosperity.

PATRIOTISM.

Thus every good his native
winds impart, Imprints the patriot passion on
his heart.
And even those hills that round
his mansion rise
Enhance the bliss his scanty
fund supplies.
Dear is that shed to which his soul conforms
And dear that hill which lifts
him to the storms
And, as a child, when scaring
sounds molest.
Clings close and closer to the mother's breast.
So the loud torrent and the whirl-
winds roar.
But bind him to his native
mountains more.
—Oliver Goldsmith.

READING.

If any person given to reading
were honestly to keep a register of all the printed stuff that he or she consumes in a year—all the idle tales of which the very names and the story are forgotten in a week, the bookmakers' prattle about nothing at so much a sheet, the fugitive trifling about silly things and empty people,
the memoirs of the unmemorable and lives of those who never really lived at all—of what a mountain of rubbish would it be the catalogue.—Frederic Harrison.

WOMEN.

Has a woman obeyed the impulse of unerring nature, society declares war against her—pit-iless and eternal war. She must be the tame slave. She must make no reprisals. Theirs is the right of persecution, hers the duty of endurance.—Percy Bysshe Shelley.

A timorous woman drops into her grave before she is done deliberating.—Joseph Addison.

There are women so hard to please that it seems as if nothing less than an angel will suit them; hence it comes that they often meet with devils.—Marguerite de Valois.

Woman is a charming creature
who changes her heart as easily as her gloves.—Honore de Bal-zac.

Without the smile from partial beauty won,
Oh, what were man? A world
without a sun.
—Thomas Campbell.

Women who have lost their faith
Are angels who have lost their wings.
—Dr. Walter Smith.

HUMAN DEVELOPMENT.

In this lies the principle of the history of mankind, without which no such history could exist. Did man receive everything from himself and develop everything independently of external circumstances we might have a history of an individual indeed, but not of the species. But as our specific character lies in this —that, born almost without instinct, we are formed to manhood
only by the practice of a whole life, and both the perfectibility and corruptibility of our species depend upon it. The history of mankind is necessarily a whole—that is, a chain of socialness and plastic tradition from the first link to the last.—Johann Gottfried Herder.

A STRANGER WITHIN THY GATES

Spends a Few Hours in the Capital City
and Finds Out Strange New Things.

I have never traveled very much either in my own Indiana or elsewhere, but now and then I do manage to take advantage of the interurban and make a visit for a few hours and it is generally a few hours for I am not much acquainted in towns and in your city less than any other. In fact I am a little afraid of the city, for I might do something wrong, as to crossing streets, spitting on side walks (although I do not chew) passing on the wrong side, etc but I was lonesome Sunday so I said to myself I believe I would run up to the city. Just what I would do I had not decided but reading my Recorder on the car, I saw that there was a meeting of the Four O'clock Forum
at Bethel Church, so I decided there to go since I don't know much about literary societies.

I arrived there just as they were singing "My Country 'tis of Thee" and I slipped in unnoticed. There some young woman read a paper, and really it was a good one. She showed the bright side of the past of the Negro and the many good things that belong to us, inventions and so on.
She urged that the young people to put forth their best efforts, and even advocated black ideals, to look up to our own and it was grand, yes indeed.

But the thing I didn't quite understand was that she said that Indianapolis was doing nothing toward improvement and that when they went to other cities, they would find out just how little they know and how far behind they are. I guess it must be true, for she didn't look like she would tell a story, not in public anyway. I looked around good and older ladies were bowing their heads the men looked wise and the other ladies' hats were so big, I couldn't exactly see how they were taking it.

After the paper two or three men spoke and one of these men, bore out the young woman's statement. He said he went to St. Louis, I believe it was, on a visit, and couldn't or didn't know how to act. It was a revelation to me, for I did think that Negro Indianapolis was the "everything"
as far as my people are concerned.
The young speaker had set me to thinking, and it must be so, for I don't believe she'd say so, standing there looking right down keen eyed into the people's faces.

At the end of the program a vot of thanks was given to the people who appeared on the program. Then another young woman with a big hat on began asking about the officers and constitution and some other things.
The president told her that the officers were elected but didn't work,
and she said "I mean working officers not stars." I don't know what she meant but that is what she said.
I guess they knew for some one hastily arose and said that all reports, etc.
would be in for next Sunday. I began thinking that the women must be suffragettes. Shortly the meeting closed and the friends crowded around the speaker of the day to offer congratulations. Among them I could see the big hat individual hold out a hand and say something and immediately left the group.

As I went out the door, I heard some one say, "I'll see you Wednesday night at the public civic meeting.
I got my car for home. Many things crowded into my mind. I looked at my Recorder and saw that February 12 was the date, Allen Chapel the place. I put the paper in my pocket and I told myself I'll be there.

FRED DOUGLASS'
EVENTFUL LIFERose From Slave Pen to Worldwide Renown.

PURCHASED HIS FREEDOM.

Chronological Story of the Precursor
of Many Great Americans to Whom Credit Is Due For the Overthrow of Slavery—Twice Supported Lincoln
For Presidency.

By N. BARNETT DODSON.

The chronology of the busy and eventful life of Frederick Douglass is interesting to all Americans. He was born in Tuckahoe, Md., in February, 1817. He lived with his master until 1833, at which time he was sent to live with a slave owner by the name of Edward Covey, from whom he made an unsuccessful attempt to escape. He was subsequently sent to Baltimore to learn the ship calkers' trade.

After working at his trade for some considerable time, always with the determination in view of gaining his freedom, he finally succeeded by running away in 1838, went to New York and married a Miss Anna Murray. It was not until he had read Scott's
"Lady of the Lake" and had taken up residence in New Bedford, Mass., that he assumed the name of Douglass. He was a prominent figure at the anti-slavery convention held in New Bedford in 1841 and delivered several addresses before that important body.

He was foremost in the Rhode Island campaign against the Dorr rebellion in 1842, was one of the famous "One hundred convention" of the New England Anti-Slavery society. In 1845
he published "Frederick Douglass' Narrative." At the close of 1845
he visited Great Britain and Ireland, where he remained for two years. His English friends gave him enough money to purchase his freedom. On his return to America in 1847 he went to Rochester, N. Y., and began the publication of the North Star.

"My Bondage and My Freedom" was the subject of a book which he published in 1855. From 1856 to 1859, when he made his last visit to John Brown, Douglass was more or less deeply engaged in politics. He supported John C. Fremont for the presidency. His activity against slavery was the cause of his having to escape to Canada to avoid arrest for alleged complicity in the famous John Brown raid upon Harpers Ferry. Mr. Douglass did not return to the United States from Canada until he revisited England, from whence he returned in time for the great political campaign in which he gave his support to Lincoln.

Frederick Douglass was an important factor in recruiting the Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Massachusetts colored regiments in 1863. Upon invitation he visited President Lincoln at the White House and supported him for re-election in 1864. In 1866 he was elected delegate from Rochester to the loyalist convention held in Philadelphia. In 1869 Douglass went to Washington, where the next year he was appointed secretary of the Santo Domingo commission.

In 1872 he was elected presidential elector of the state of New York and was chosen by the electoral college to take the vote to Washington. He was one of the chief speakers at the unveiling of Lincoln's statue in Lincol-park, Washington, in 1876. President Rutherford B. Hayes made Mr. Douglass marshal of the District of Columbia in 1877.

Mr. Douglass' career from 1881, when he was appointed recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia, until his death, which occurred at his home, Cedar Hill, Anacostia heights, Washington, Feb. 20, 1895, is as follows: Published "Life and Times of Frederick Douglass," 1882; in 1884 attended the funeral of Wendell Phillips, delivered eulogy on Phillips; married Miss Helen Pitts, a white woman, in 1884; delivered lectures on John Brown; revisited Europe in 1886-7;
made tour of the southern states; appointed United States minister to Haiti and charge d'affaires to Santo Domingo; addressed abolition reunion in Boston in 1890; in 1893 acted as commissioner for Haiti at the World's Columbian exposition.

"SALLY ANN'S EXPERIENCE"

Mrs. Lillian Jones Brown Presents Play
to Her Friends on Lincoln's Birthday.

The parlor matinee given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Lillian Jones
Brown, at her home at 1125 North Senate avenue brought together a hundred of the elect of Indianapolis
colored citizenship. "Sally Ann's Experience," dramatized and directed by Mrs. Brown was presented by eighteen of the most popular young women in the city. The play itself told the story of a Ladies Aid Society whose members prided themselves with being the backbone of the church
rather than the men who were concerned mainly with appropriating the auxiliary's money under the pretense of dire church need.

At this particular time, the Aid Society had collected a goodly sum of money for "Furin Missions"
but had decided as a matter of compromise, to buy a new carpet instead of putting on a new roof as the brethern suggested. All was well until inquiry was made of 'Elizabeth Taylor
the society treasurer, as to the actual funds on hands. To the surprise and sorrow of the society, 'Elizabeth had spent the Lord's money to visit a sick daughter, hoping to replace it soon by the sale of a pair of candle sticks.
This misplacement of church money must be kept from the ear of the brethren who had little faith in woman's business ability. Some woman to be sure told her husband.

At the next church meeting, Deacon
Amos "let the cat out of the wallet"
and events moved swiftly to a tearful prayerful and wrathful denouement.
'Elizabeth Taylor stood up before the congregation, bemoaning herself as a weak transgressor. The elders were obdurate and felt that withdrawal from her was the only course.
Hereupon, Sally Ann, a fiery, man dating spinster arises and defends
'Elizabeth by abusing the attorneys and plaintiffs of the other side. Sally Ann took the hide off the brethren,
so to speak, until they arose and sang
'Blest Be the Tie That Binds" in sheer self-defense.

The play was executed with unusually ability and fineness, Miss Carolyn Stewart, as Parson Page, tall handsome, dignified in clerical garb
made the visiting parsons turn green with envy. Mrs. Grace Valentine and Mrs. Martha Hill, as Sally Ann and 'Elizabeth the principal characters sustained their reputations for fine acting. Perhaps the most natural and unique bit of work was done by Mrs. Lena Kirk Porter, as Mary Embry, the weeping, pious, church mouse widow whose dead husband was the one perfect man. The Misses Beulah Beck and Flora Harper as "Aunt Jane" and "Lije Davidson" respectfully deserve special mention.

A beautiful aftermath of the play
in keeping with Lincoln's birthday anniversary was the presentation of the following living pictures: Miss Hazel Stewart as "Uncle Sam," Miss Willie Belle George, "Liberty" and Miss Elizabeth Jones, "Columbia."
The people of Indianapolis feel much indebted to Mrs. Brown for the afternoon's entertainment which was characteristic of fine ability, genial hospitality and enterprise. Mrs.
Brown was assisted ably by her husband, Dr. W. E. Brown, Misses Nora Roberts, Carrie Barnes and Maud Perry.

You Are Invited to Attend the Debate.

Because of the famine that is in the land, not for bread and water, but for hearing the word of God, it has been enjoined upon us by the Lord to hold continuous services from one end of the year to the other and this we are doing by the strength of Israel's God. The full gospel is preached in all its primitive simplicity. The sick are being healed, devils cast out, sinners saved, prodigals are returning to the Lord and being baptized with the Holy Ghost and the poor are having the gospel preached unto them. Everybody welcome. Come and bring the sick and all who are in need of the Water of Life. No collections are taken. The entire work is supported by the free will offering. No membership sought after nor attained. Services every night at 7:30 except Saturday. Bible Reading, Tuesday and Friday 2 p. m.; Sunday 5 and 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Lesson VII.—First Quarter, For Feb. 16, 1913.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xii, 1-9—Memory Verses 1-3—Golden Text, Gen. xii, 2—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We closed our last lesson by a very brief glance at the fact that when in the days of Peleg, son of Eber, the Most High, the possessor of heaven and earth, divided to the nations their inheritance, He set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel (Gen. x, 25; Deut. xxxii, 8), although Israel had not at that time begun to exist on earth. Today there is no nation among the nations called Israel, but in the sight of God Israel is still a nation and shall never cease to be one, and ere long shall be recognized as such, and her king shall sit on David's throne at Jerusalem and shall be king over all the earth, King of kings and Lord of lords (Jer. xxxi, 35-40; III, 17; Zech. xiv, 9; Luke i, 32, 33). He will perform the truth to Jacob and the mercy to Abraham even as He has sworn (Mic. vi, 20).

This is worth noting now, as we are about to begin the study of the story of Abraham. To those who would dare to question there ever was a man called Abraham we would say—consider Jesus Christ and His testimony in such passages as Matt. viii, 11, 12; John viii, 56. The number twelve is suggestive of all Israel and of the time when the twelve apostles shall sit on twelve thrones, ruling the twelve tribes (Matt. xix, 28; Luke xxii, 30). The seventy nations of Gen. x make us think of the other seventy whom He sent forth after He sent forth the twelve. The Babel story of Gen. xi, 1-9, points us onward to the consummation of rebellion against God before the promises to Abraham shall be finally fulfilled (see Rev. xiii, xviii; xviii).

The spirit of Babylon may be found everywhere today and is easily recognized by the principle "Let us make us a name" (Gen. xi, 4), instead of "Let us make Him a name." I know well that the wisdom of men, under the name of scholarship, new theology, etc., derides a great many things which are plainly written in the Scriptures, but I am one of those who believe all things written by Moses and the prophets and that there shall be a literal fulfillment of the same, even as Christ Himself taught.

From today's lesson onward we have the story of Abraham, the friend of God (II Chron. xx, 7; Jas. ii, 23), to whom the God of Glory appeared and said, "Get thee out of thy country and from thy kindred and come into the land which I shall show thee." It is written of him, "By faith Abraham, when he was called to go into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went" (Acts vii, 2, 3; Heb. xi, 8). He was for more than 150 years contemporary with Shem, the son of Noah, and I do not doubt but that he had heard from him of paradise, the flaming sword, the cherubim, the future glory of the redeemed, when all creation shall enjoy the benefits of the great redemption according to Rom. viii, 18-23. See also Heb. xi, 10, 13. The great promises of verses 1 to 3 of our lesson were not fulfilled to Abraham in his lifetime (see Acts vii, 5), and they still await their complete fulfillment, but all that God has said shall come to pass in His time, and all true believers shall see it.

His call was to complete separation from his kindred, but he took some of them with him, and they seem to have proved a hindrance for a time. He did not get beyond Haran till the death of his father (xi, 32). When he entered the land his first resting place was Sichem, Shechem, in the plain of Moreh. There the Lord appeared unto him and confirmed the promise, "Unto thy seed will I give this land" (verse 7), and there Abraham builded his first altar in the land unto the Lord. This seems to have been the Lord's first appearance to him since He called him to leave his native land. He had not been fully obedient, and revelations of the Lord require obedience on our part. The Canaanite was in possession of the land and knew not the God of Abraham, but this gave Abram the opportunity to bear witness to the true God, and also to manifest his faith and patience.

His next resting place was between Bethel and Ai, and there also he builded an altar unto the Lord and worshipped Him (verse 8). This was all as it should be and a testimony to the living and true God in the presence of the heathen who dwell in the land. He continued his journey southward, and from verse 9 we may gather a good saying for our daily life, "going on still." It should always be so with the believer, or, as in II Sam. v, 10, margin, "going and growing," or, as in Ezek. xii, 7, "an enlarging and a winding about, still upward, . . . by the midst." The rest of this lesson chapter is not so good a record. The going down to Egypt because of a famine in the land does not look like confidence in God, and it did not turn out well, for it led to deceit on the part of Abram and Sara in the presence of the Egyptians, and we read of no altar unto the Lord in the land of Egypt. Deceit is always wrong, and we can never afford to omit the altar unto the Lord. It is not for us to condemn. Are we with our increased light doing better? Have we put away from us all deceit and lying?

SATURDAY NIGHT SERMONS

BY REV. SAMUEL W. PURVIS, D.D.

THE SPARK DIVINE.

Text, "If you forgive men their trespasses your Heavenly Father will also forgive yours."—Matt. vi, 14.

Peter, once upon a day, in a very gracious mood, asked the Lord, "How oft shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him till seven times?" To err is human; to forgive is divine. Peter is always intensely human in his erring; he would now be divine in his "making up." Some one has hurt him. Impulsive people get many a knock. Just at this time Christ and his disciples are in a storm center of abuse, insult, slander, misrepresentation, was an everyday event. Under many a burning sting they felt like John, "Lord, wilt thou that we bid fire come down from heaven and consume?" Now Simon's got another jolt. What should he do—get even, pay back, tit for tat, an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, keep the wound green or forgive? But it has happened more than once. The rabbi says, "Forgive three times." He'll do better than that—outwardly. However, he will see what the Master says. "How oft shall I forgive? Seven times?" Christ smiles, looks into his heart and gives him a heart standard. "Until seventy times seven!" Love is not to be limited by the multiplication table. We should pardon as long as we love, indefinitely, like the love of God. Forgiveness is the Christian's finest grace. It's the spinal column of his spiritual body, out of which grow the ribs of every other virtue.

A Parable Stated.

"A certain king," Christ is a wonderful preacher. "Never man spoke like this." The master artist draws a few rare strokes. They see the picture of an eastern court. The pashas, collectors of the royal revenues, are being summoned before the royal despot to render their accounts. One looks uneasy. He casts dread glances toward his sovereign. Vice Rajah Punshon has outdone himself at his villa with boon companions. The stories of his excesses at the metropolis show dazzling prodigality. In spite of princely salary and outrageous extortion in his province he is now a bankrupt and a defaulter. Nothing left for him but damp dungeons, convict chains, possibly beheading. The way of the transgressor is never easy. If he ever gets out of this scrape he'll be a different man. He flings himself prostrate before his monarch. He begs forgiveness. My, how a man will plead for his life! The royal heart is touched by his apparent penitence. The scepter is extended. The bonds are loosed. The enormous debt is forgiven, not in part, but the whole. Say, sinner, doesn't that sound like God? Sin is debt. The penalty of sin is death. How, quickly, how cheerfully, God forgives—above all, how often!

Gracelessness of the Graceless.

What's the confusion over in the poor quarter of the town? Who's that pompous looking official throttling that poor fellow? Hear him shout, "Pay me that thou owest!" His victim, blood streaming from mouth and nostrils, is at his feet, beseeching, "Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all!" But, no; face black with hatred, he belabors him and drags him off to prison. "Stay, thou wretch, till thou pay me the hundred pence!" To the cold, slimy, vermin filled prison for $15! Who is this merciless prosecutor? Father of mercies, it's the king's servant, Rajah Punshon, just forgiven, coming from the very heat of his own experience! Oh, thou hard hearted creditor! "Shame, shame!" cry his fellow servants. The king hears of the ungrateful outrage. His kindly royal face now blazes with indignation. The unforgiving creditor is summoned. "Thou wicked servant, shouldst thou not also have compassion, even as I had pity on thee?" There's a rush of guards, a rattle of chains, and the unforgiving one is hustled to the tormentor—unforgiven! "So likewise shall my Heavenly Father do unto you if ye forgive not every one his brother their trespasses." Read that again, unforgiving twentieth century disciple. The parable has only one meaning. Sins are debts. Hath not God forgiven you? And you forgive not!

Forbear—Forgive—Forget!
Forbearance is a rare virtue, and forgiveness is a twin gem in the same setting. Unforgiveness sours and darkens our lives. The unforgiving man is in hell or on the way there, for there's no mercy for the merciless, no forgiveness for the unforgiving. There's no sin against which Jesus more solemnly warns. An unforgiving man is lost. He has barred heaven's door against himself. God's mercy cannot reach him. He's a billion miles away from heaven though he live next door to the church. And the man who remembers suffers also. It isn't easy to forget. Some Christians forgive, but they never forget themselves nor give others a chance to forget. Some who have difficulty with their brethren say they have buried the hatchet, but they know where the grave is, and they have a stone set to mark the spot. As long as you know where the hatchet is you can dig it up very easily. If possible forgiveness ought to include reconciliation. I do not want the forgiveness that forgives and then humiliates me every time the chance offers. It hurts me and hurts the other. It ought to be good and clean and complete. God says of our sins, "I will remember them no more forever." That's just like God.

HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

New Broiling Apparatus For Use In Gas Stoves.

A new broiling apparatus has been patented by a New York woman. It is designed for use in a gas stove, and the gridiron is a removable part of the oven. On the back and front of this pan are raised bearings. The front bearing has a notch in the center, and the back one has a slot in it. The gridiron is long and narrow and consists of the usual pair of clamping members to hold a piece of meat. A long handle of a single piece of wire rests in the notch of the front bearing, and a broad, flat, triangular member at the other end is thrust in the slot at the back and prevents the apparatus from turning over on edge. It is the work of an instant to slide the gridiron into place or to remove it, and all the drippings are caught in the pan below.

Cleaning Brass and Bronze.

Very old discolored brass articles, such as candlesticks and trays, should be washed in a strong solution of ammonia water. Hold the article in a glove covered hand and scrub with a soft brush that will not scratch it. Repeat the operation if the first is unsuccessful, then rinse in clear water and polish with a piece of old flannel or chamois leather. Plate polishes are not needed for old brasswork, as a highly polished face for such is quite unnecessary. Bronze articles will repay for a cleaning with a piece of old soft flannel and a few drops of sweet oil. Finish off with a clean piece of chamois leather after wiping the surplus oil away.

Escalloped Potatoes and Sausages.

Four cupfuls of sliced potatoes, two and a half cupfuls of milk, two tablespoonfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls of sausage fat, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of onion juice and one pound of sausage.

Butter a baking dish. Make a white sauce of fat, flour, seasonings and milk. Put a layer of potatoes in the dish, add a little sauce and repeat until the dish is filled. Prick the sausages and put in a pan in the oven and bake till nearly done. Then place on top of potatoes and set in hot oven to finish.

Cheese Croquettes.

Three tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half cupful of flour, one cupful of milk, one egg, one and a quarter cupfuls of American cheese, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one-eighth teaspoonful of paprika. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, salt, paprika and milk. Mix together the cheese (cut into bits) and the egg, add to the sauce and cook until the cheese is melted, then chill. Shape into balls, dip in fine bread crumbs, egg and crumbs again and fry in deep fat. Serve on toast and surround with white sauce.

Spinach Omelet.

Chop up all together a quarter of a pound of spinach, a quarter of a pound of cooked beets, one tablespoonful of parsley and a little thyme. Season the mixture with salt and pepper, then add by degrees one heaping tablespoonful of flour, four tablespoonfuls of milk, four eggs, well beaten, and two heaping tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Mix the whole well together, put into a buttered pan and bake in the oven for twenty minutes.

Hungarian Beets.

One pint of sliced cooked beets or one can beets, three-quarters of a cupful of thinly sliced onions, one tablespoonful of pickling spice, one pint of weak vinegar, one tablespoonful of sugar. Heat the spice, sugar and vinegar to boiling point. Pour this over the beets and onions, arranged alternately in a deep dish, and let stand twenty-four hours to season.

Polishing Windows.

Dust and clean the window sashes before attending to the panes. Then use a few drops of spirit, applied to the glass with a pad of old soft flannel. This soon rids it of all grease and smears. Polish with a clean white rag or tissue paper. This is a quick and efficient way of cleaning windows.

Halibut With Oysters.

Broil halibut steak and sprinkle lightly with lemon juice. Heat oysters in butter until they curl, season with salt and pepper and pour over the fish. Garnish with parsley or cress. For six people use two pounds of halibut and a pint of oysters.

MYSTERY OF THE DICE EXPLAINED

Trick of a Gambler Revealed by a Compass.

In 1865 or 1866 I was a civil engineer on the Union Pacific railroad, then building. The western terminus was at Julesburg, a city that, like Jonah's gourd, sprang up in a night and, like Sodom, disappeared as suddenly. Though Julesburg's extinction was from the establishment of a new terminus further on, at Laramie. My headquarters were in Julesburg, and a more thorough exponent of all that is vile in humanity never bloomed on the face of the earth.

On the evening of my arrival, curious to get a glimpse of what was going on, I visited the different places of hilarity, finally bringing up in a heap of boards that had been nailed together for a gambling den. There were faro, keno, roulette and in one corner a table at which two men with heaps of money before them were throwing dice. I noticed that this table was not improvised, like the other furniture of the place. It was of polished black walnut and ornamented. One of the men throwing dice was a pockmarked, red headed man with a sinister countenance, the other a fine type of the rugged, honest, fearless plainsman. I looked on the game for awhile and was astonished at the way the dice rolled for the plainsman's adversary. I had heard of loaded dice and the skill with which they could be thrown, but I had never dreamed of anything like this. It seemed that the red headed man could do with them as he liked. Finally the plainsman intimated that all was not fair. The other, instead of resenting the imputation, called on me to throw for him for awhile. I did so and met with the same astonishing luck as himself.

Handing the dice back to him, I stood wondering how the trick was done, for I did not doubt that it was a trick. Of course the pockmarked man lost occasionally, but it was plain to me that such losses were intentional. At times his luck seemed to be very poor, while that of the plainsman was never very good or very bad. How the dice could be manipulated, as I was sure they were, I could not conceive, but while I was racking my brain to discover the plainsman had lost several thousand dollars, and the pile before him had been reduced to nearly nothing.

While in that country I carried no valuables. In my trousers pocket I had a silver watch worth perhaps $5. Having an appointment at 10 o'clock I pulled out my watch, as I thought, to note the time, but instead drew forth a pocket compass, an article I needed constantly. What was my astonishment to see the needle vibrate feverishly, and when it settled, instead of pointing to what I had supposed was north, it pointed due east. The men at the table were so immersed in their game that I did not ask them where the north pole lay, but turned to a man behind me. He told me it was where I supposed it was.

Here was new food for thought. I looked at the table and saw that under its top there was an inclosed space about a foot square. I wondered why a place like that should be in a dice table. Then it occurred to me that there was something in it to influence the dice. From that I argued that this something also influenced my needle, therefore it must be magnetic.

"Stranger," I said to the pockmarked man, "what's in the box under the table?"

He glanced at me without reply. The plainsman bent down, then, putting his hands to the table top, gave a lift. The top came off and exposed the interior of the box. There in plain view was a horseshoe magnet, or, rather, a telegraphic machine. The plainsman whipped out a revolver and covered his antagonist.

"Thank you, stranger," he said to me. "Please look into it while I see that you have fair play. Hands up, please!" to the pockmarked man.

The order was obeyed, and I made the examination. Inside the table, besides the magnet, was a battery connected by insulated wires running inside a leg of the table, with a button about midway down. On one face of the dice were metal disks. When the gambler wished these disks to fall face on the table he would press the button with his knee, turn on a current, and the magnet drew them down. Without the current they fell by chance. Over the disks was a thin coating the color of ivory.

The plainsman kept one eye on the man he covered, while with the other he reapportioned all the money he had lost. There was no disposition on the part of any one in that country at that time to punish such rascality, and as soon as he had got his own he went out, asking me to go with him. When we were alone together he said:

"Young man, I've got $1,000 to give you for the secret you found out about what was inside that table."

I replied that I never gave nothing for something, but he was welcome to the secret, and I told him how my compass had been influenced by the battery. He seemed very much interested and pleased, remarking that he must have "one of them pizen 'pintin' little things" himself, and offered me the thousand dollars for mine. I declined this new method of rewarding me for saving his money from the pockmarked man, who, by the bye, was connected with the gambling den.

FOR THE CHILDREN

May—Handsome in person and contented and happy in spirit.

June—Gay, impetuous and will marry early.

July—Fair to look upon, but sulky in temper and jealous.

August—Amiable, practical and will marry rich.

September—Discreet, affable and generally beloved.

October—Pretty, coquettish and oftentimes unhappy without cause.

November—Liberal, kind, amiable and thoughtful for others.

December—Well proportioned, gay, fond of novelty and inclined to be extravagant.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Game of Duck Market.

This game may be played outdoors or in with five or more players. Two of the players are buyer and seller; the rest are ducks. The ducks stoop down in a row with hands clasped under the knees. The buyer says to the seller, "Have you any ducks for sale?" The seller says: "Yes, plenty of them. Will you walk around and try them?" The buyer now tries different ducks by laying his clasped hands, palms downward, on the head and pressing inward. He pretends to find fault with some of the ducks, saying, "This one is too old," "This one is too fat," "This one is too tough," etc. When a duck is found that is satisfactory the buyer and seller grasp his arm, one on either side, and swing him back and forth, the duck still remaining in a stooping position with hands clasped under the knees. If he stands this test the buyer leads him away to a place selected as the coop. The sale goes on till all the ducks are sold. Any duck that smiles or does not stand the swinging test must pay a forfeit, to be redeemed at the conclusion of the sale. In case there are many players there should be two or more buyers and sellers.

A Queer Boat in Which to Ride.

The "driver aut" is to be met with in many parts of South America. A peculiarity of the insects of this species is that when in danger they form themselves into balls. When overtaken by a flood they rush to a certain place near their dwellings and in a few seconds clinch each other in such numbers that they become a living ball.

A traveler once saw thousands roll themselves together in this way until the ball was at least one foot in diameter. Then when the flood came they were swept down the stream. Following the ball in his canoe, the traveler saw it lodge in the top of a tree, to which the ants on the outside clung. When the water had subsided somewhat the ants left the ball in great droves, seeking refuge in the upper branches.

As soon as the flood had disappeared they marched back to their former place of abode. One of these balls, in which all the ants were dead, was found, and it may still be seen in a museum in England.

The Lost River of Idaho.

One of the most singular features in the scenery of Idaho is the occurrence of dark, rocky chasms, into which creeks and large streams suddenly disappear and are never more seen.

The fissures are old lava channels produced by the outside of the mass cooling and forming a tube which, when the fiery stream was exhausted, has been left empty, while the roof of the lava duct, having at some point fallen in, presents there the opening into which the river plunges and is lost.

At one place along the Snake one of these rivers appears gushing from a cleft high up in basaltic walls, where it leaps a cataract into the torrent below. Where this stream has its origin or at what point it is swallowed up is absolutely unknown, although it is believed that its sources are a long way up in the north country.

Besides becoming the channels of streams, the lava conduits are frequently found impacted with the ice masses which never entirely melt.

Migration of Birds.

Other birds fly fast as well as carrier pigeons, especially when they are on the spring or autumn migrations. It is believed that they fly at a great height, far out of eyesight, and that they make the entire journey from this latitude to the land where it is always warm in not more than a week.

My Garden.

I made a little garden.
 I dug it with my spade,
 I raked it with my little rake,
 And then three holes I made,
 I made 'em with my finger—so!
 To put things into 'em to grow.

In one I put a penny,
 In one I put a bean,
 And in the other one I put
 A button that was green.
 I'm waiting now quite patiently
 To see what each will grow to be.

I think they can't be growing
 The way they ought to grow,
 And so perhaps I'll dig them up.
 I'd really like to know.
 This morning when I first went out
 I planted them, and they don't sprout!

J. F. Fielder, Who Succeeds Governor Woodrow Wilson.

James Fairman Fielder, who succeeds Woodrow Wilson as governor of New Jersey when the president elect resigns in preparation for his high office as chief executive of the United States, is a lawyer by profession and has been active in politics for the past ten years. In the recent reorganization of the New Jersey senate Mr. Fielder was chosen president of that body, and under the laws of the state the president of the senate automatically becomes chief executive either upon the resignation or the disability of the elected governor.

Since 1903, when the prospective governor was elected to the assembly, he has been a member of the New Jersey legislature. In 1907 he was elected to the senate and for the past two years has been minority leader of the upper house. Last November the political overturn made him leader of the majority and so he got in line for the governorship.

Mr. Fielder is a native of Jersey City and forty-six years old. He was educated in the public schools of his native city and was admitted to the New Jersey bar in 1888. His term of office as governor will expire next January. As the law of New Jersey prevents any governor from succeeding himself, it will be necessary for Mr. Fielder to resign before next election if he wishes to go before the people as a gubernatorial candidate.

A Massachusetts Statesman.

Congressman John Wingate Weeks, who will succeed W. Murray Crane as junior United States senator from Massachusetts on March 4, is serving his fourth term as a member of the national house of representatives. Senator Crane was not a candidate for re-election, but Congressman Samuel W. McCall contested for the nomination in the Republican caucus. Mr. Weeks winning on the thirty-first ballot. ward until the Democrats proposed a state wide primary to select a senator, when the majority party agreed on Mr. Weeks.

John W. Weeks was born in Lancaster, N. H., in 1860. He is a graduate of the United States Naval academy and served as a midshipman before he resigned to enter the banking business. He was one of the organizers of the naval militia of Massachusetts and served as a volunteer officer in the Spanish-American war. In 1900 he was elected to congress from the Twelfth Massachusetts district. He was returned from that district for two terms and was re-elected last November after a readjustment of the congressional lines. His congressional activities have been principally in naval and banking matters. He is married and lives in Newton, serving as mayor of that city before going to congress.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Champion, Walker Goulding Picks His Successor.

George Goulding, the champion heel and toe walker of the world, now living in Toronto, is of the opinion that there is a walker in Denmark who sooner or later will succeed him as champion.

His name is V. E. Glyke. He completed in the 10,000 meter walk at the Stockholm Olympic games, making a good showing. The Dane is a natural walker, with a smooth and finished style.

Goulding announced a short time ago that he intended to quit. He is considered the greatest walker that ever put on a shoe and is the holder of many world's records.

Suggest Universal Rowing Stroke.

A novel rowing suggestion has been advanced by James Pilkington, president of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which, if adopted, will completely revolutionize the rowing methods in the United States. President Pilkington's plan is to adopt a universal system of scientific rowing similar to that in England, where the Oxford and Cambridge and public school oarsmen all row the same stroke.

In order to accomplish this it is proposed to make a radical departure from the present training and coaching methods and secure the consent of the rowing committee or management of every educational institution of prominence to adopt the Courtney stroke and compel its use by having it taught by professional coaches.

Do You Want a German Title?

People wanting a German title can get a brand new one for $125. The committee on the Olympic games in appealing for funds states that these games in Germany must be an example of the German power of organization.

"We must show the visitors," says a statement, "who will flock to Germany, our fatherland in its beauty and industry, economic and military might, but, above all, the feats of our athletic youth must bear witness to the inexhaustible springs of our national strength and vigor."

With a view to encouraging donations the committee offers the title of "promoter of the German imperial committee of Olympic games" at the price aforesaid.

Ban on Milwaukee Boxing.

No more boxing bouts will be allowed in Milwaukee, according to a statement by District Attorney Yockey after warrants had been issued for the arrest of Jack Redmond and Joe Wellington recently on the charge of participating in a prize fight.

Yockey's action came after a conference with several ministers, who claimed that the bout was not a boxing exhibition, but a "prize fight," and as such is prohibited under the laws of Wisconsin.

Speed Horses Are Disappearing.

"If the present state of affairs shall be long continued, the breeding and development of thoroughbred horses will entirely cease and the thoroughbred will disappear from the United States," declared the New York State Racing commission in its report to the legislature.

According to the commission's report, the race track is necessary to keep a thoroughbred horse at his best.

MADISON

A recent questionnaire submitted to the pupils of the Broadway school showed that about two thirds of them sleep with their bedroom closed; a large number drink coffee or tea; Nearly all the boys over 12 smoke and some under; nearly all the pupils attend picture shows; none, excepting the primary go to bed regularly before 10 p. m. Even the primary children keep late hours; some do not own tooth brushes; nearly all have either the earache, headache or sore throat; many come to school without eating breakfast or lunch. These are some of the dangers that the colored citizens of this city should stop and think about. Medical inspection has been instituted in the Madison schools, but without the intelligent cooperation of the parents the schools cannot succeed in protecting the health and prolonging the lives of the children.... The Lincoln Literary society of Broadway H. S. will celebrate the birthday of Lincoln and Washington with an appropriate program Feb. 21st. The Domestic science girls will serve refreshments.... Mr. Brown chorister of Broadway Baptist church is preparing for an elaborate Easter service.... Geo. Guess teacher at Hanover had an excellent program at his school Friday night.... Prof. Sawyer's mother who fell and fractured her wrist is getting along nicely.... Mr. Barnett's drill at Broadway Baptist church Monday night was a grand success.... Mr. Crooms is very ill.... The teachers find that they can best serve the community by concentrating their energies in the school room and in the denunciation of their choice. Dissipated energy works much ill but little good.... It is hoped that more people of this city will take the Recorder, it will bring you in touch with what the Negro is doing. If you have not the time any member of the Lincoln Literary society will send in your subscription, 3 months only 25 cents.
